FOR A SHORTER DAY.

Argument Made by Labor Leaders in Burlington.

Burlington, Dec. 18,-J. D. Pierce, national labor organizer, addressed a mass meeting yesterday afternoon in Carpenters' hall under the auspices of the Central Labor union. The meeting was very largely attended. Mr. Pierce touched on a variety of subjects per-taining to the advancement of organized labor in this country and the different phases that have gone toward making it necessary for the laboring classes to organize. The speaker gave an exhaustive history of the origin of boycotts, and said that the custom of boycotting was as ancient as the world's Another point touched on by Mr Pierce was the question of shorter hours for the working man. He said that the fact that large corporations were turning off men when they had outlived their usefulness and were setting a limit on December 1, 1910. ages when a man might be employed. bad made it necessary for men to have shorter hours in order to rest and have the energy necessary to earn their live-lihood. Corporations, said the speaker, demand so much of men in these days that it is absolutely necessary that the workers have shorter hours. stated that there would probably come a time when the laboring man would demand a six hour day and possibly a four hour day, that he might spend the remainder of his time in pleasure,

Referring again to the matter of trade chains, eveners, whiffletrees, hoes, forks, schools, Mr. Pierce stated that the unrakes, shovels, etc. Sale positive, rain ions were not opposed so strongly to or shine, all to be sold without limit or the co-operative industrial education the co-operative industrial education planned as proposed for Burlington, but that they were opposed for burnington, but that they were opposed to the regular trade school which took the young boy out of his home and placed him at work at an early age. Following Mr. Pierce, a short address was given by George A. Armstrong, who urged the men to exerise their right of franchise in a more independent manner,

ENTOMBED IN A GLACIER.

A Reminder of the Fearful Alpine Tragedy of 1870.

A broken alpenstock bearing the carved name "Dr. J. Bean, Baltimore," has, the London Chronicle says, just been found by a Chamonix guide in the ice of the Glacier des Bossons, which "flows" down direct from the summit of Mont Blanc to the valley of Chamonix. The find recalls the most terrible accident in Alpine history, when eleven climbers perished on the summit of the Great White mountain in violent snowsterms which lasted a week. In September, 1870, the Rev. G. McCorkindale of Glasgow and two Americans, Dr. J. Bean of Baltimore and Mr. Randall, both elderly men with little experience of the Alps, set out from Chamonix with eight guides and safely reached the summit in doubtful weather. Hardly had the descent commenced when the snowstorm started, and not one of the eleven climbers was seen again alive. A strong force of guides some days later found the bodies of five victims. including the clergyman and Dr. Bean, but the other six were never found, having most probably fallen into crevasses. It is now thought, owing to the discovery of the broken alpenstock, that the bodies of the six climbers, who have been buried in their tomb of ice for the last fortyone years, have reached the end of the glacier, which travels at the rate of about 500 feet a year, and are not far from the surface of the ice at the lip of the Chamonix valley. - St.

James' Gazette.

The call for international standards of all kinds is becoming every day more insistent with the progressive unification of the industries of the world. The latest demand of this kind is for an international standard of colors. Chemists, manufacturers of dye stuffs and pigments and many others would benefit by such a standard. It is suggested that when once the desired color scheme has been decided upon the best method of perpetuating the standards and rendering them available for comparison every where would be by means of colored glasses with which a tintometer could be constructed. A tentative instrument of this kind, based on an arbitrary color scheme, has been made.

Warning About Washing Greens. When preparing greens especially of the wild variety, nothing should be taken for granted since invisible worms tre very difficult to dislodge. After washing them almost leaf by leaf and through several waters, if you will let them stand an hour or more in strong salt water, you may be surprised to find that more worms, stupefied by the salt, have dropped to the bottom of the pan, when, but for this precaution, their presence would have remained undiscovered. - Good Housekeeping
